©2011-2021, CCHI

This document outlines the appropriate and inappropriate use of CCHI's marks CoreCHI™ and CORE CERTIFICATION HEALTHCARE INTERPRETER™. Individuals certified by CCHI must abide by the relevant sections of this section. Failure to comply with these policies may result in disciplinary action and/or revocation of certification.

A. Quick Reference - Getting Started

The purpose of this Quick Reference section is to get you going in the right direction, quick. Please read the full text of this Guide for all of the guidelines you must follow for proper use of the CORECHI™ and CORE CERTIFICATION HEALTHCARE INTERPRETER™ marks. B. CORE CERTIFICATION HEALTHCARE INTERPRETER™ and CORECHI™

Individuals who have met CCHI's rigorous certification standards are authorized to the exclusive use of the CoreCHI "marks". CCHI offers two marks associated with the core professional certification of healthcare interpreters – CORECHI™ and CORE CERTIFICATION HEALTHCARE INTERPRETER™. We encourage CORE CERTIFICATION HEALTHCARE INTERPRETER™ certificant(s) to use these marks on their websites, business cards, brochures, and other professional materials to distinguish themselves and receive acknowledgement for their accomplishment.

Bearers of CCHI's marks have achieved and will maintain the required standard as defined by CCHI. The proper usage of the marks is a crucial part of your communications to current and prospective employers, agencies and patients. When properly used, they represent standards of excellence for healthcare interpreting and demonstrate your commitment to upholding these standards. It is essential that the marks are displayed in a clear and consistent way.

The marks are not the equivalent of an educational degree, a professional designation, or a title. Instead, the mark represent that you have met the standards required by CCHI, including completing training, experience and examination requirements. You are therefore entitled to use the CoreCHI or CHI mark in conjunction with your name to demonstrate this accomplishment, so long as you abide by the rules outlined herein.

These rules are important to maintaining the value of the marks. Since you worked so hard to achieve the right to use the mark, we expect you will want to protect its integrity. If the marks are used improperly and if CCHI did not take reasonable action to correct the misuse, trademark protection could be lost. This would mean that CCHI would not be able to stop persons from using the mark without having first met CCHI's high standards. This would be detrimental to the public who perceive the marks as indicating that the persons displaying them have met certain standards in training, experience, ethics and examination. CCHI will work to ensure that any misuse and unauthorized use of the marks are addressed to ensure the day never arrives where anyone could use them without having first met all the requirements.

CCHI retains all trademark, certification mark, and other ownership rights concerning its marks. CCHI therefore reserves, and may use, the full range of legal remedies and certification-related sanctions available under applicable laws and corporate policies to protect the marks. Infringement of any CCHI certification mark will be challenged. Questions concerning the proper use of the marks should be submitted in writing to CCHI at info@CCHICertification.org and should include the phrase "use of marks" in the subject line.

Each certificant credentialed by CCHI accepts and assumes sole responsibility for understanding and satisfying all applicable governmental and legal professional requirements, including those requirements which may apply to the use, display and/or advertising of a mark. For example, each certificant is responsible for ensuring that the use of the mark on professional and business related materials (e.g., stationary, signs, cards or advertisements) is not in conflict with the laws of the State in which that individual practices or operates. CCHI assumes no responsibility concerning the application of such governmental and legal requirements.

Use of the marks are limited to those qualified certificants who have satisfied all CCHI certification requirements and been granted the CoreCHI or CHI certification by CCHI; remain in good standing; and satisfy all other certification and recertification requirements established by the CCHI with respect to the marks and certification.

1. Non-Assignability and Non-Transferability of the Marks

Permission to use the marks are limited and personal to the certificant, and may not be transferred to, assigned to, or otherwise used by, any other individual, organization, business, or entity.

2. Non-Interference with Use of the Marks by Other Certificants

A certificant may not prohibit, restrict, or otherwise limit the authorized and appropriate use of the marks by another certificant.

3. Other Use Requirements

The marks must stand by themselves and may not be combined with marks, designations, or logos related to other certifications, credentials, groups, or organizations, and such use is prohibited. The marks generally may be used in the same location as other affiliation marks or logos, but must remain separate and distinct so as to avoid confusion concerning the source of the certification, and to avoid the appearance that other marks, certifications, credentials, or organizations are associated with, or endorsed by, CCHI.

4. Rules Governing the Use of the CoreCHI Marks - CORECHI™ and CORE CERTIFICATION HEALTHCARE INTERPRETER™

Both marks – CORECHI™, CORE CERTIFICATION HEALTHCARE INTERPRETER™ – must be clearly associated with the individual(s) certified by CCHI:

Both marks must be followed by one of the following six approved nouns, except when the mark immediately follows a certificant’s name:

professional,
practitioner,
certificant,
certification,
mark,
exam.

Why? According to U.S. trademark law, a trademark should be used as a descriptive adjective, not as a noun or verb, in order to prevent the mark from becoming generic. This is why CCHI requires a noun to follow any of the marks.
